Weapon Creed

I, hereby swear, before this flag,
that I will be brave, honourable,
disciplined, vigilant, and I will take good care of my rifle, at all times.

The Weapon Presentation Ceremony marks a turning point in BMT. It signals the shift from civilian life to the responsibilities of soldiering. From this point on, recruits are expected to live out the values they have been taught, including discipline, teamwork, and accountability, both during training and beyond it.

This is more than just a rite of passage. This ceremony reflects a shared commitment. As rifles are presented and vows reaffirmed, recruits stand together with their detachment and platoon, ready to take on the duty of defending Singapore with pride and purpose.

With this rifle, I will defend my country!

Being the first parade that we experienced, there was a sense of quiet tension in the air. We were focused on remembering our drills, conscious of our timing, and aware of the responsibility that came with bearing arms.

This ceremony taught us that every movement had to be deliberate. Small mistakes stood out more than before, reminding us that discipline was no longer just about individual effort, but about how well we functioned together, together as one unit.

Scaling New Heights.

Four recruits tackle the "Low Rope" obstacle of the Standard Obstacle Course, while others watch and cheer them on. Dubbed one of the more challenging obstacles in the SOC, it demands technique and focus. Every ascent on the rope requires precision, as recruits work to maintain control and complete the obstacle successfully. The support from their fellow recruits adds a quiet motivation, turning an individual effort into a shared moment of teamwork.
